Peter Jenkin

RN, BN, MPHC (Palliative Care), MRCNA

Peter has worked in various clinical roles in Palliative Care for more than 13 years, particularly in specialist community services.

In 1999, he jointly developed, with Deborah Parker and Alison McLeod, the Palliative Care "Link Nurse" role in residential aged care, going on to start a private education consultancy business in this field.

In 2000 he was awarded the SA Premiers Nursing Scholarship allowing him to travel to the UK to investigate the interface between residential aged care and palliative care as well as the developing roles of Nurse Practitioners.

Peter has significant research and project management experience. He has independently managed research projects primarily in the fields of chronic disease self management.

He has authored research reports, book chapters and peer reviewed articles and has presented at conferences nationally and in the UK.

Currently, he is Clinical Practice Consultant at Southern Adelaide Palliative Care Services in a role that encompasses clinical, education and quality improvement.
